

Dr. Shailesh Padmakar Puntambekar

specializes in surgery and oncosurgery, and the last nine years he has been working as consultant in oncosurgery and associate professor in King Edward Memorial Hospital in Poona (Pune), India. He received his medical degrees in Poona; his further training includes work with distinguished professors in Inselspital of Bern, Switzerland, Indianapolis, USA, and the University of Southern California, USA. His numerous publications include, for example, Role Of Anterior Exenteration In Advanced And Recurrent Pelvic Cancers (Journal of Pelvic Surgery Sep2002), and Laparoscopic Anterior Exenteration (Gynaecologic Oncology 2006). He is the winner of Golden Laparoscope Award at AAGL meeting in Chicago, USA in 2005 for the best video on 'laparoscopic ureteroneocystostomy with Psoas hitch', and has conducted training for International Laparoscopic Surgeons at Galaxy Laparoscopy Institute since July 2005. At present, Dr. Puntambekar is preparing a book on laparoscopic oncology, and working on a project focused on radical hysterectomy in patients with carcinoma cervix.